Southwest Manitoba

MANITOBA'S SUNNY SKIES beckon the vacationer to the southwest corner of the province for a variety of holiday recreations that's practically unsurpassable.

The sun shines on gently rolling hills, green valleys and clear, blue lakes that promise pleasure and relaxation.

From the International Peace Garden on the United States boundary (photo at top left), to Swan River at the fringe of the rugged northland, there are highways and side roads that lead to pleasant camping grounds, quiet fishing waters and up-to-date vacation resorts.

Rock Lake, 19 miles from the border, has historical background as well as beautiful scenery. Cottages that fringe the lake are built on the stamping grounds of a famous Indian tribe that lived and battled and died there. Pelican Lake, Oak Lake and the Souris River Valley are popular summer resorts for fishing and family vacations. Anglers thrill to the challenge of scrappy pickerel and northern pike, while their wives and children swim, build sand castles on the beaches and relax in comfort and convenience.

Pelican Lake, near Ninette, offers scenic family vacations as well as good fishing. Along No. 1 Highway (west) are modern motels, catering to casual travellers and also sportsmen who make use of the fine hunting grounds. Oak Lake and Melita are names which should be in every sportsman's book. The Melita area is a haven for upland game birds and waterfowl. Oak Lake offers fishing as well.

Biggest city of the southwest area is Brandon, Manitoba's second largest urban centre, located 138 miles west of the provincial capital of Winnipeg. It lies in the verdant Assiniboine Valley, on the banks of that winding river, with picturesque hills rising on either side.

Straddling two main highways, No. 1 and No. 10, the "Wheat City" is both the hub of the rich farmlands that surround it and the gateway to northern areas of forest and lake. Within one or two hours of easy driving are the many lovely holiday spots which lie between it and the United States border, as well as the famous vacation playground of Riding Mountain National Park, north on No. 10.

Minnedosa Valley

Brandon itself is a pleasant city of broad, tree-lined streets. In the downtown area are department stores and specialty shops, with imported china, woollens, linens, furs, blankets and a host of other items to catch the eye of the visitor.

Good picnicing spots are found in well-kept Stanley Park. Here, also, are the Zoological Gardens, containing a variety of animals and serving as a sanctuary for ducks and geese. The Public Museum and the Art Gallery are other points of interest, while baseball fans may see night games in the flood-lit Kinsmen Memorial Stadium.

During the first week in July each year Brandon's normally quiet streets are crowded and accommodation is at a premium, as visitors flock to the Western Canada Trade Fair and Provincial Exhibition. For more than 70 years "Brandon Fair", with its agricultural and industrial exhibits and its midway, has been a highlight of the summer in western Manitoba.

Tourists will find first-rate accommodation facilities in Brandon, including some of Manitoba's most modern and attractive motels.

To the west of Brandon, situated near the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border on No. 1 Highway, is Virden, hub of the fabulous new oil industry of this province. Over 500 pumping wells dot the wheat-laden landscape—truly a remarkable sight.

Leaving Brandon, No. 10 Highway leads northeast to the agricultural town of Minnedosa, nestled in its beautiful valley. This area, as well as that around Neepawa 18 miles to the east, is famous for its pothole waterfowl shooting. From Minnedosa the highway winds through green hills, from which the traveller glimpses panoramas of rolling farmland, climbing upward to the vast plateau of Riding Mountain National Park.

On the way are the little towns of Erickson and Onanole. A few miles from the latter is a dude ranch, known for its pleasant accomodation and scenic surroundings. Here vacationists may enjoy an atmosphere of the old west and the thrills of trail riding — or perhaps boat, swim and fish in Clear Lake, on the shores of which stands the ranch.

Situated about 125 miles north of the international boundary and 175 miles northwest of Winnipeg, Riding Mountain National Park may be approached by modern highways from all directions. The park has a character and setting unique for any location in a prairie province, for it occupies a great plateau which rises sharply above the western plains — 2,200 feet above sea level.

Sweeping westward for nearly 70 miles, it contains an area of 1,148 square miles, a region of heavily-timbered uplands, sheltered valleys, boulder-strewn ridges and scores of lakes, which reflect the blue of the sky in their crystal-clear depths. Throughout the park wind smooth motor roads, from which may be seen magnificent stretches of forest.

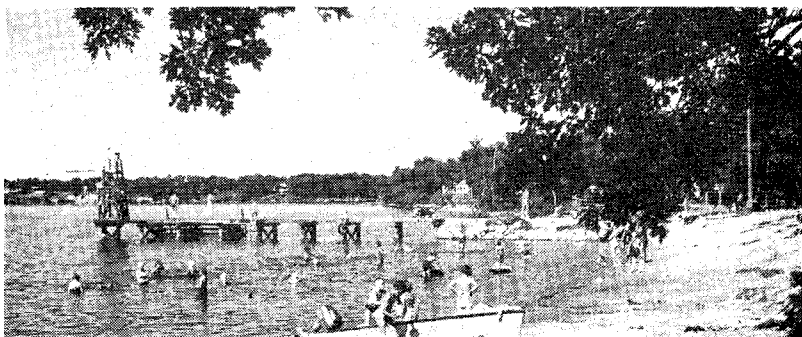

Many of the park's natural features were shaped by the great glaciers of the Ice Age. The steep escarpment of Riding Mountain itself is mainly the result of pre-glacial erosion. Later, with the surrounding country, it lay under an immense sheet of ice. Evidence of glacial movements remains in the depressions now filled by small lakes and in moraine and boulders that are found in many parts of the park.

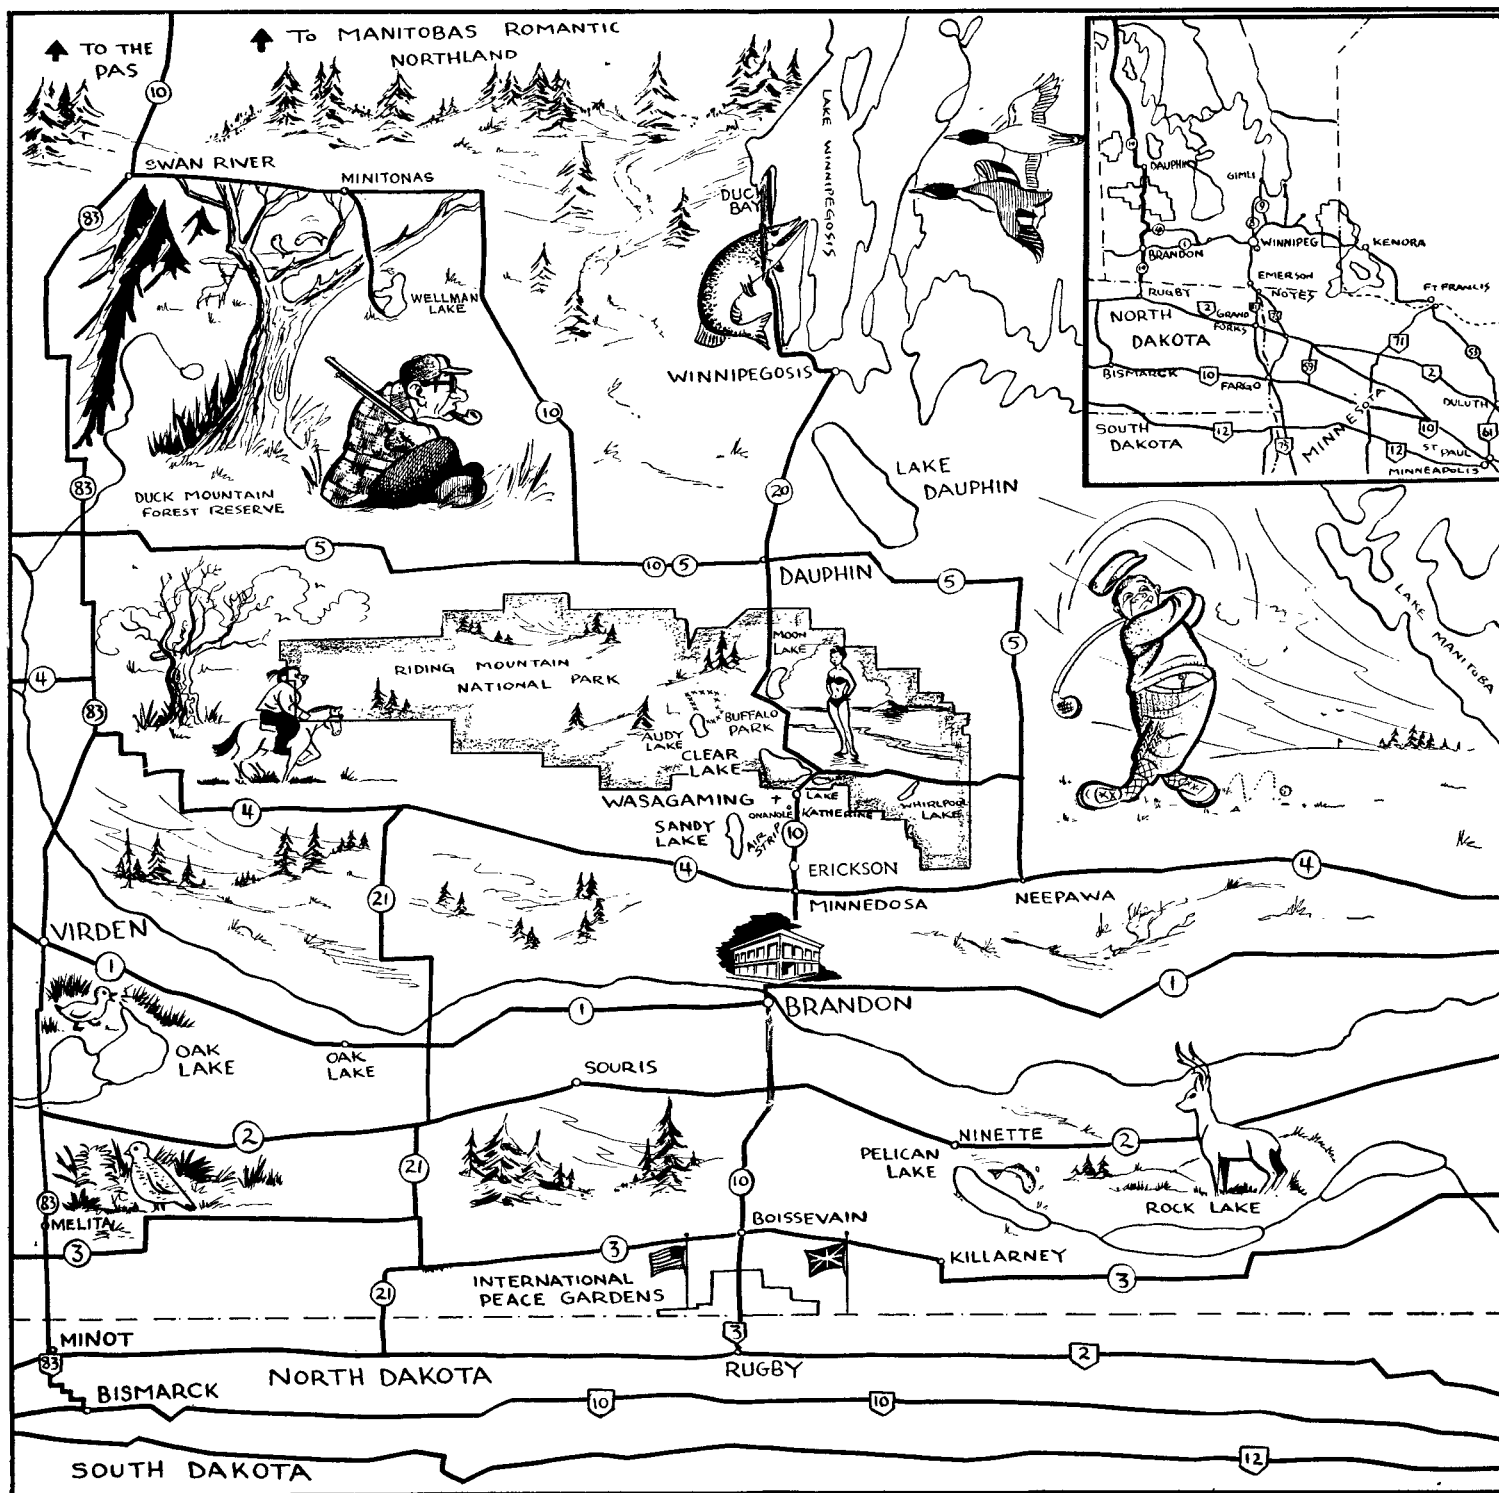

The first exploration of the region seems to have been carried out by a Canadian Government expedition under Henry Youle Hind in 1858.

Riding Mountain Park is easily accessible from the United States. Six main highways lead from the international boundary. Four converge on Brandon and two on Winnipeg.

The natural attractions of the park have a broad appeal. Eighty-five miles of excellent motor roads wind through forests of white and black spruce, jackpine, aspen, white birch, tamarack, balsam fir, green ash, elm and Manitoba maple. The contrasting coloring of bark and leaves, mingled with the deep shade of evergreens, provides a real show of nature's wonders.

Killarney Lake

The lakes of the park are among its great charms. Lying between green ridges, they vary in size from small tarns to bodies of water several miles long.

In a special fenced area of 2,000 acres near Lake Audy is a small exhibition herd of buffalo. Seen grazing in the lush meadows of the park, these animals recall thrilling stories of the days when Indians, armed only with bow and arrow, pursued thundering herds across the vast reaches of the prairie to the west. Included with the buffalo are a number of native elk, deer, and moose. Bring your camera.

WASAGAMING

Wasagaming, an attractive summer resort on the southern shore of Clear Lake, is the park townsite and contains the administrative headquarters. Here are graded and hard-surfaced streets, smooth green boulevards, well-kept walks and buildings constructed to harmonize with the natural beauty of the surroundings.

This miniature metropolis contains a number of hotels, several stores, restaurants, an outdoor roller skating rink, a beauty salon, drug store, theatre, souvenir shops, service garage and other business concessions.

In the centre of the townsite, adjoining the lakeshore, a large park area has been laid out with artistic walks, pergolas, flower beds, hedges, and other botanical displays. Near the centre of this area is the park administration building, which also serves as a bureau of information for visitors. The museum building is constructed of natural logs and stone. It contains mounted wildlife exhibits and Indian, geological and other displays. Several modern summer hotels and motels are operated by private enterprise.

For visitors travelling with cabin trailers or carrying their own camping equipment there is accommodation in the government campground. It is situated in a beautiful grove west of the business section of Wasagaming facing Clear Lake, and within easy reach of stores, restaurants and garages.

Sports open to visitors include swimming, boating, riding, hiking, tennis, golf and lawn bowling—in addition to motoring along the scenic roads. A special area for baseball, softball and field sports, as well as horseshoe pitch and children's playground, will be found near the public campground at Wasagaming. A picnic ground, equipped with tables, benches, and outdoor stoves is also available. A modern motion picture theatre, an outdoor roller skating rink and a fine dance pavilion operated by private enterprise in Wasagaming extend the day's enjoyment.

The beautiful golf course is definitely one of the best in Canada.

Of the beaches in the park, the one on Clear Lake, which stretches for a mile and a half along the townsite of Wasagaming, is outstanding. A breakwater constructed in the lake forms a sheltered bay.

For tennis enthusiasts there are eight clay courts at Wasagaming which rank with the best in the province, and are available for use at a nominal fee. A large pavilion with spacious verandas and dressing rooms overlooks the courts.

Fishing, riding, hiking and motoring are other features. Clear Lake has been stocked with lake trout. Great northern pike, whitefish and perch are also taken.

Riding enthusiasts have a choice of several fine trails over which to explore the region.

But Riding Mountain Park is just one of the attractions of Manitoba's southwest.

Further north, Swan River and Minitonas lead into newly-opened Wellman Lake and the Duck Mountain Forest Reserve with its virgin fishing waters. On Lake Winnipegosis, Duck Bay has canvasbacks, redheads, great greenhead mallards and pintails. Then there are great northern pike and walleye to fill the angler's creel.

The town of Dauphin guards the northern gates of Riding Mountain Park and introduces the traveller to the changing terrain. Dauphin is a handsome, prosperous cluster of people who are justly proud of their rich farmlands, their manufacturing industries and the beautiful lake nearby. Other hospitable, prosperous and progressive towns—like Neepawa and Swan River—are located through the southwest area.

Yes, for excitement and relaxation—for a holiday land of contrast that meets every tourist's requirements—Manitoba's southwest fills the bill!
